A BREEZE AT DELMONICO'S.

Alan Arthur and Others Demand the Cards of a Rude Young Englishman.

There was a breeze in Delmonico's Twenty-sixth-street restaurant a few evenings ago, says a New York paper. It came in through the window, where a rather ill-favored young man was sitting, engaged in the problable and pleasing operation of dissecting a grilled bone, to the accompaniment of generous draughts of Bass's pale ale. The open window was one of those along the Twenty sixth-street side of the restaurant, and the breeze have ing secured an entrance, drifted across the room, fluttering the ribbons and ruffles of several young ladles who were suppling there, and ruffling the screnity of tacir es-

Alan Arthur, who was scated at one of the lables in the line of the breeze in com-pany with ladles, sent a waiter, who re-quested the young man of the grilled bone to allow bim to lower the window. The man gruffly refused. The waiter returned with the message. Mr. Arthur looked dag-gers at the unknown and the ladies expressed the opinion that he was a horrid Paul Dana sat with some ladies at still another table, and he, knowing nothing of the unfortunate experience of Mr. Arthur's messenger, called another waiter, who in-nocently carried a second request with re-spect to the lowering of the window, Again the man at the window refused, this time more emphatically and offensively than before. The second walter returned to Mr.

Dana with the message of refusal.

By this time the breeze had become stronger, both literally and metaphorically, and the lifefavored young min with the grilled bone and the itass's ale became at once what is popularly known as the eyno sure of all eyes. The men in the room ground their teeth, pulled at their moustaches, and the young ladies, as was quite to be expected, made uncomplimentary references to the stranger's outward personto be expected, made uncomplimentar references to the stranger's outward person references to the state at this way dogged by through this supper and did not seem to feel disturbed by the commotion he had excited. up at any cost, and he cirl.

Who was he?
More than a hundred suppers were intercupted at odd moments and speculation was rampant. Nobody had ever seen him before. Repeated views of the open-window champion, views in profile, full-face views, and three quarter views were had, but no one found anything familiar in his obstinate features. He was absolutely unknown.

"It's an outrage. Here we may be in-balling pneumonia," said one old gende-man, "with every breath we take simply because this man says we must. We are He can kill us off with malaria

iy. The stranger colored, stammered, and, without another word, turned and was lost in the darkness.

And he has not been found yet, although the most anxious inquiries have been made for him, and a number of men are easer for information as to his name and address.

HETTY GREEN'S GRIP.

Confusion in the Plans for Reorganizing Houston and Texas Central. [New York Herald.]

Mrs. Hetty Green, the woman with a ter-rible grip on many millions, which she wields as a club, has lifted her arm to strike C. P. Huntington, whose comprehensive and powerful grasp takes in thou-ands upon thousands of miles of railroads, from ocean to ocean, with branches everywhere, is the object of her attack.

It is a giantess against a giant.
She wants him either to let go his hold on the Houston and Texas Central railroad, with its splendid had-grant rights, or else pay her a grand sum to leave him to his

The facts leading up to the present crisis may be briefly stated.

HUNTINGTON'S SCHEME. Mr. Huntington some years ago decided that the Houston and Texas Central railroad, which runs through a rich country, and has a land grant of 10,250 acres for every mile of road constructed, would be a good property to hold. It would help his southern Pacific and other less productive reads out of their difficulties. So he went southern Pacific and other less productive roads out of their difficulties. So he went to work buying up the stock and finally got control at, it is said, a cost of about $10 a share. But the funded debt of the company was very large and to make the stock valuable it would have to be reduced. On January 1, 1885, the company defaulted, and on February 23, 1885, in a suit brought by the Southern Development Company, which is another finne for Huntington and associates, receivers were appointed to take charge of the road. This suit was brought for $600,000 advanced to pay interest, but on May 26, 1886, it was dismissed, and new on May 26, 1886, it was dismissed, and new receivers were appointed on the suit of the first-mortgage bondholders. REAR BONDHOLDERS TO THE FRONT. But Mr. Hontington was not permitted to have entirely his own way. There were $3,446,000 of general mortgage bonds outstanding, and the owners thereof insisted on saving something for themselves. Finally the best Mr. Huntington could do was to submit to an arrangement by which these bondanders would purchase the property. They appointed the following as a Committee of Purchase and Reorganization; Henry Budge, of Haffgarten & Co.; Thomas L. Manson, Jr., of Charles Héad Thomas L. Manson, Jr., of Chirles Head & Co.; Frederick Taylor, of Frederick Taylor, of Frederick Taylor, Edwire, Charles Robinson Smith, and William J. Quinlan, Jr., of the Chemical National Bank, Mrs. Hetty Green owns $1,000,000 of the bonds. She agreed that when $1,250,000 of the bonds had been deposited with the Farmers Loan and Trust Company she would deposit her million also and leave the purchase of the property and reorganization of the compa-ny to the committee. Mr. Quinlan signed the agreement for her.

MES. GREEN DRAWS BACK.

Yesterday was the last day for depositing Two million one hundred and twentyseven thousand dollars were deposited and more were on the way from California.

But Mrs. Hetty Green did not deposit hers. On the contrary, she refused to go into the syndicate because she wanted better terms. The plan agreed upon by the committee was that the general or third mortgage bonds after foreclosure and sale were to hear 4 per cent, interest, instead of 6 per cent., with debentures at 4 per cent,
for past-due coupons; the second mortgage bends to bear 6 per cent, interest, instead of 8, with like debentures, and the first merigage bonds, which full due in 1891, to bear 5 per cent, and be extended fifty years.

The interest on the first mortgage bon is was to be paid in cash. Under this scheme Mr. Huntington's stock rose to 41, showing a gain of about 31 above the price be paid. When Mrs. Green lifted her arm against the scheme yesterday Huntington's stock dropped to 34, and the bondhoiders were thrown into the greatest consternation. MRS. GREEN MUST PAY.

MRS. GREEN MUST PAY.

But the members of the committee who were seen by a Herald reporter claimed that Mrs. Green assumed her wartike attitude too late. Said one of them: "We have a clear majority—nearly two thirds in fact—and Mrs. Hetty Green can do nothing with her million."

"But she has other millions in cash. Can she not bid against you at the sale?"

"Oh, yes. She can buy the whole road if she wants to bid enough."

"Suppose she relents and agrees after all to come in, will you let her in?"

"Not with any special privilezes, that is certain. She agreed to come in like the rest, and at the last moment she has held back to be treated with separately. What do you think of it? No, sir; she will have to pay up like a man."

The agreement declares that the committee may impose additional terms on any holder wishing to come in after the time to sign it has expired.

sign it has expired.

WHY MRS. GREEN IS ANGRY. Mrs. Green's representatives claim that Mrs. Green's representatives claim that the property is very valuable, and can be made to pay far better returns on the bonds than the plan of reorganization would secure. They assert that Mr. Huntington's scheme is to bleed the Houston and Fexas Central road through his Southern Pacific and other lines, and to make his Houston and Texas Central stock valuable at the expense of the bondholders. They say she owns not only third mortgage bonds, but large blocks of the other and better bonds of the company, and that she intends to of the company, and that she intends to have ber rights to the last dollar. Mrs. Green treats Mr. Huntington and the committee as if they were one in in-terest, but members of the committee do not acknowledge any privity between them-selves and the Southern Pacific magnate. If Mrs. Green takes any legal steps in the matter it will be through her counsel, Messrs, Sullivan & Cromwell, They re fused yesterday to give any intimal what her plan of procedure would be.

Lillian Russell Says She's in Debt and Hasn't Any Property.

[New York World.] [New York World.]
Lillian Russell, trim, plump, and pretty, sat in Referee Curtis R. Hatneway's office in the Equitable building yesterday morning and answered questions fired at her by Lewyer Lewis. She was there because of the reopening of a suit by which Pauline Godchux had obtained a judgment against her by fault for $802.28 for costumes made. Russell claims that suit cannot be brought against her because she was an infant in law at the time, and also because she has a busband living. She tetsified that last fail, before going on her western tour, she gave John Jaher an order on James C. Duff, with whom she has an engagement, for $1,500 out of her salary, to be paid to her husband, Teddie Solomon. Of this amount $600 has been paid by Mr. Duff reserving $100 a week from her salary for the last six weeks. In answer to questions she said:

— I have nevertalked with Mr. Duff about this judement against me. He didn't beriu Russell claims that suit cannot be brought this judgment against me. He didn't begin taking the money from my salary before, because it is always understood that these loans are to be paid at the end of the sea-son. I received flotice six weeks ago that the deduction would begin. I spend and the deduction would begin. I spand and require for living purposes $100 a week. My salary is $200 a week. When I was getting $200, before the reduction began, I dispessed of it all. I paid some debts, several small ones, but nothing on the claim under consideration. I have not paid all my other debts. I owe costumers and milliners. The season will close in two weeks, when I will still owe Mr. Duff $700."

Herefused to give it, but vouchsafed the information that he belonged to her Majesty's navy. He etterly refused to be more explicit than this. Another of the men who had been indignant over the open window accosted him at this juncture and contemptuously refused to believe the statement about his position, saving that no gentleman and no officer would have behaved so discourteously.
